ABOUT THE AREA

Elatochori is a picturesque mountain village nestled on the slopes of the Pieria Mountains in Central Macedonia, Greece, at an elevation of roughly 850 to 900 meters. Divided into the historic old settlement and a thriving new district, the village seamlessly blends traditional stone architecture, pine-forested alpine landscapes, and authentic Greek hospitality. Its tranquil mountain setting makes it a peaceful escape for nature lovers, hikers, and weekend travelers seeking fresh air and sweeping views across the surrounding countryside.

The village's primary attraction during the colder months is the Elatochori Ski Center, located just 6 kilometers from the village center. Featuring well-maintained ski slopes, modern lift infrastructure, and cozy mountain chalets, the area becomes a vibrant hub for winter sports enthusiasts from across Northern Greece. Beyond skiing, visitors during spring and summer can explore local hiking and cycling trails, visit nearby waterfalls, and sample traditional regional cuisine at local tavernas.

Despite its secluded alpine atmosphere, Elatochori is exceptionally well located for multi-destination travel. Positioned only 28 kilometers from the capital city of Katerini, the village is also within a short drive—roughly 30 kilometers—of the golden sand beaches along the Olympic Riviera. This unique geographical advantage allows travelers to combine a cozy mountain retreat with coastal excursions during warmer months.

For air travelers and international visitors, the primary gateway to the region is Thessaloniki International Airport 'Makedonia' (SKG), located approximately 95 to 100 kilometers northeast of Elatochori. From SKG airport, travelers can reach the village in under an hour and a half via major highway routes passing through Katerini, making the destination easily accessible for both short weekend getaways and extended holidays.
