Discover the perfect balance between comfort, sustainability and privileged location in this single-family house, designed in detail to ensure well-being and energy efficiency.

With exceptional sun exposure and high-quality finishes, this home was designed to offer maximum comfort with minimum environmental impact. It stands out for the integration of ecological solutions, such as the rainwater collection and reuse system, with an underground tank of 3,000 liters, ideal for irrigation and use in outdoor taps.

The heat pump with the support of solar panels ensures efficient air conditioning, complemented by a pre-circulation system for hot water that significantly reduces water and energy consumption. It also has electric blinds with adjustable blades, monitorable through a mobile application for intelligent management of interior comfort.

In terms of construction, the villa benefits from Capoto thermal insulation, aluminum frames with double glazing and thermal cut, providing high energy efficiency and acoustic comfort.

Inside, the living room and kitchen stand out in open space, large and bright, fully equipped with hob, oven, fridge, extractor fan and dishwasher. All rooms include built-in wardrobes, and the bathrooms feature a contemporary design, with wall-hung crockery, built-in taps and electric towel rails.

The villa is also equipped with an alarm, video intercom, automated garage doors, stove, laundry and other details that elevate its functionality.
