ABOUT THE AREA

Ollers is a tiny, peaceful hamlet nestled in the Conca de Barberà comarca (county) within the province of Tarragona, Catalonia, Spain. Formally a small district or pedanía belonging to the municipality of Barberà de la Conca, this quiet village sits at an altitude of about 443 meters above sea level. Far from the crowds of the Mediterranean coast, it functions today primarily as a serene summer getaway and a destination for second homes, maintaining a very small year-round resident population.

The history of the village stretches back to the late 11th century, with its earliest written documentation dating to a land donation in 1076. Over the centuries, Ollers was heavily influenced by medieval history; it eventually came under the full control of the Knights Templar and later the Knights Hospitaller until the 19th century. Architecturally, the village boasts a couple of notable sites, including the historic stone Bridge of Ollers (spanning the Anguera River) and the remnants of the old baroque Church of Santa Maria, which was partially destroyed during the post-war period and later rebuilt using local housing structures.

Surrounded by a striking rural landscape, Ollers is heavily tied to the local agricultural identity of the region, which is famous for its vineyards and the DO Conca de Barberà wine distinction. The countryside is defined by the convergence of the Anguera River and the Vallverd torrent, painting a scenic backdrop of fields growing wheat, barley, and wine grapes (particularly the native Trepat variety). It is an ideal spot for slow tourism, hiking, and exploring the neighboring towns of Sarral and Pira.

For travelers looking to fly into the region, the nearest aviation hubs offer convenient access to Tarragona and Ollers. Reus Airport (REU) is the absolute closest option, situated just under 10 kilometers or 25 minutes from Tarragona city center and a short drive from the Conca de Barberà region, operating a handful of seasonal and budget European flights. For major international long-haul flights, Josep Tarradellas Barcelona-El Prat Airport (BCN) is the main gateway, located roughly 73 kilometers away (about an hour's drive or accessible via direct regional buses and trains to Tarragona).
