ABOUT THE AREA

Wellingborough is a market town and civil parish in the North Northamptonshire unitary authority area of Northamptonshire, England. It is 65 miles from London and 11 miles from Northampton, and is on the north side of the River Nene.

The town has a population of around 44,300. Administratively it is within the Borough of Wellingborough which covers an area of approximately 163 sq kms and which has a population of around 73,000.

It is an historic market town which retains some notable historic buildings, especially on Sheep Street and High Street, including an inn (now the Hind Hotel) where Oliver Cromwell stayed on his way to the Battle of Naseby in 1645, and the 14th century All Hallows Church which houses some fine examples of medieval craftsmanship. There are numerous visitor attractions within the vicinity and it is a good base from which to explore the surrounding area.
