

Excellent Site For Sale With Planning Permission in Pallaskenry Limerick Ireland

Info Agente

Nombre:	Niall Madden
Nombre empresa:	Esales Property Limited
País:	Reino Unido
Experiencia since:	2002
Tipo de servicio:	Selling a Property
Specialties:
Property Type:	Apartments
Teléfono:
Languages:	English
Sitio web:	https://esalesinternational.com

Detalles del anuncio

Propiedad para:	Venta
Precio:	USD 762,767.26

Ubicación

País:	Irlanda
Estado/Región/Provincia:	Munster
Ciudad:	Pallaskenry
Dirección:	An Curran
Publicado:	19/09/2024

Descripción:

Excellent Site For Sale With Planning Permission in Pallaskenry Limerick Ireland

Esales Property ID: es5553506

An Curran
Pallaskenry
County Limerick
Planning ref no 18/958

Here we present an excellent plot of land in one of Irelands most sought after areas for development right now.

32400 m2 of land for development or 3.24 hectares.

This site has full planning permission for 30 houses +18 extra when these are finished all part of same site.

The site has its water and electricity.

Pallaskenry is a village in County Limerick, Ireland. Pallaskenry derives its name from Kenry Castle, nowadays known as Shanpallas Castle. It was one of the principal ancient castles of County Limerick.

About the Area

County Limerick sits in Ireland's southwest. Beside the Shannon Estuary, the city of Limerick is home to the 13th-century King John's Castle, on an island in the river. Nearby, the Hunt Museum displays a vast collection of art and antiquities in the old customs house. Southeast of here, archaeological sites like the Grange Stone Circle dot the countryside around Lough Gur, in the Ballyhoura Mountains.

A limerick is a five-line verse, either smart or silly, popularised by Edward Lear in the 19th century – but there's nothing silly about County Limerick. It contains variety, humour and history all in the same place.

Limerick's low-lying farmland is framed on its southern and eastern boundaries by swelling uplands and mountains. Limerick city is boisterously urban in contrast and has enough historic and cultural attractions for a day's diversion. About 15km south of the city are the haunting archaeological sites around Lough Gur, while about the same distance southwest of the city is the cute thatched village of Adare.

Sitting at the mouth of the River Shannon, Limerick city is the third largest urban centre on the island. It's also the hardest to pin down – it formed a bleak backdrop to Frank McCourt's autobiography Angela's Ashes, but nowadays it's a revitalised city full of art galleries, slick new hotels and the legendary Thomond Park, the home of Munster's passionate rugby union team.

One moment, you find yourself wandering through the Middle Ages at King John's Castle. The next, you're in the Milk Market, a rejuvenated bazaar of fresh, local produce that comes direct from the producer. You'll explore old Georgian townhouses, then sip cocktails in the glamorous Marcopolo. There's no way to put Limerick in a box, and the locals wouldn't have it any other way.

The Shannon Estuary takes you past the 18th century Curragh Chase Forest Park and House, before you come across a most unusual flying machine at Foynes. It's not a boat, nor is it a plane – it's actually a bit of both. The Foynes Flying Boat Museum features a full-scale Boeing 314 replica, complete with a purpose-built honeymoon suite. It's a fitting tribute to the golden age of air travel, when a small port on the Shannon served as a mini 'Casablanca' for passengers like JFK, Ernest Hemingway and Humphrey Bogart.

It's also where Chef Joe Sheridan invented something very special back in 1943. On a dreadful night, the coffee shop welcomed a weary captain and passengers in – their flight to Newfoundland had been delayed. Joe was asked by the owner Brendan O'Regan to prepare something to warm their tired visitors. Joe served them a cup of coffee, with a surprise glug of whiskey added in – and in doing so, invented the Irish Coffee!

But coffee with a whiskey kick is not the only surprise in Limerick's history. The Hunt Museum holds paintings by Renoir and Picasso, amongst other treasures. In picturesque Adare you can explore the magnificent 19th century Adare Manor, a luxurious 5-star hotel and golf resort – due to host the Ryder Cup in 2027. And at Lough Gur, you can't throw out a picnic rug without hitting an ancient stone circle, hill fort or mass rock of some kind – this ancient lake has settlers dating back over 5,000 years, and to this day the wind sounds like their whispers...

Speaking of wind, you'll have plenty of it at your back heading down from the Ballyhoura Mountains. When it comes to adventure sports, this part of the island is the New Zealand of the Northern Hemisphere, featuring 98km of mountain bike trails as one of the jewels in its crown. Further west, the Limerick Greenway (which follows the old Limerick to Kerry railway line) beckons for walkers and cyclists who want to explore the lush landscape, dotted with restored Victorian-era stations, ancient castles and historic abbeys.

Main Features

- 32400 m2 of land for development
- Excellent location close to many amenities
- Stunning views.
- Huge Potential in the rental market if developed on.
- Full Planning Permission in Place

Contact us today to buy or sell your property in Limerick Ireland fast online.

Común

Pies cuadrados terminados: 32400 m2

Tamaño del lote: 32400 m2

Lease terms

Date Available:

Contact information

IMLIX ID: IX6.084.822

