Fermo - culture, history and quality of life in the heart of the Marche region

Fermo is one of the most historic and charming towns in the Marche region - a true jewel of central Italy. Picturesquely situated on a hill, around 7 km from the Adriatic coast, the town offers a fascinating view of the gently rolling hills that stretch down to the sea.

The origins of Fermo date back to ancient times: the Romans founded the colony of Firmum Picenum here, traces of which can still be seen today. Over the centuries, Fermo developed into an important cultural and economic center, which is still characterized by its rich history, its artistic buildings and its lively city life.

The historic town center offers visitors an atmosphere full of charm: narrow alleyways, elegant palazzi, picturesque squares and magnificent views of the sea and the surrounding hills. Particularly worth seeing are the Piazza del Popolo with its Renaissance arcades, the impressive Teatro dell'Aquila - one of the most beautiful theaters in Italy - and Fermo Cathedral with its impressive Romanesque-Gothic façade and sweeping panorama over the Adriatic coast.

In addition to history and culture, Fermo offers an excellent quality of life. The town is known for its culinary tradition, excellent local cuisine, fine wines and typical specialties such as olives all'ascolana or truffle dishes from the nearby hills. The weekly market in the piazza and the numerous festivals and events in summer bring life and authenticity to the old town.

Thanks to its central location, Fermo is also an ideal starting point for discovering the Marche region:

Just a few minutes separate the city from the golden sandy beaches of Porto San Giorgio. The Monti Sibillini, perfect for hikers and nature lovers, can be reached in an hour.
