The capital of South Tyrol awaits you on a visit with a varied program, from tradition to culture to modernity.

South Tyrol's capital is located roughly in the center of the region. The Bolzano basin was already inhabited thousands of years ago. Originally, the first settlement in this place was called "Bauzanum", probably after the first inhabitant of the place, who called himself "Bauzus". The town was then built in the 12th and 13th centuries, with the medieval town layout remaining unchanged until the 19th century. From then on, Bolzano became a popular tourist destination, with the Gries district in particular becoming world-famous as a climatic health resort.

The municipality of Bolzano includes 5 districts and the small mountain village of Kohlern. The historic old town with its arcades is of course particularly worth seeing. Bolzano is also known for its various attractions and cultural offerings. For example, you can admire Ötzi in the Archaeology Museum or visit numerous trade fairs on various topics at the Bolzano Exhibition Center. A total of seven museums and four castles and palaces await you in Bolzano. In the arcades, on the other hand, you can still experience the flair of the "small big" city. Incidentally, in 2021 it was the first city in Italy to be awarded "Climate Community Gold", the highest award for municipal climate protection recognized throughout Europe.
