Selva di Val Gardena is a picturesque municipality in South Tyrol, nestled in the imposing mountains of the Dolomites. The village lies at an altitude of around 1,563 meters and is the highest municipality in Val Gardena.

Selva Gardena is particularly famous for its unique location at the foot of the Sassolungo and the Sella Group, both of which are UNESCO World Heritage Sites. These spectacular surroundings characterize the townscape as well as the lives of its inhabitants. The Dolomites give Selva Gardena a special charm in every season - in winter with snow-covered peaks, in summer with lush green alpine meadows.

Selva is an important center for tourism and winter sports. The village is directly connected to the world-famous Dolomiti Superski ski area and is part of the Sellaronda, a ski circuit around the Sella massif. In summer, the region is transformed into a paradise for hikers, climbers and mountain bikers.

Culturally, Selva is strongly influenced by the Ladin tradition. Alongside German and Italian, Ladin is an important everyday language. This cultural diversity is reflected in the architecture, customs, music and regional cuisine.

Despite its importance as a tourist destination, Selva has retained its alpine village character. Historic farms, small chapels and well-kept houses blend harmoniously into the landscape. At the same time, the village offers modern infrastructure, hotels and restaurants of a high standard.

Selva di Val Gardena thus combines nature, sport, culture and tradition in a special way and is one of the best-known and most popular vacation resorts in the Dolomites.
