ABOUT THE AREA

Parentis-en-Born is a scenic town situated in the northern part of the Landes department within the Nouvelle-Aquitaine region of southwestern France. Positioned in the heart of the Landes de Gascogne Regional Nature Park, the commune is enveloped by Europe's largest man-made pine forest. This unique geographical setting places the town directly on the eastern shores of the expansive Lac de Parentis-Biscarrosse, offering a tranquil inland alternative to the rugged Atlantic coast just a short distance away.

The town is perhaps best known for its vibrant connection to nature and outdoor recreation. The lake itself features fine, sandy beaches and calm, shallow waters that make it an exceptional spot for swimming, sailing, and family outings. A vast network of cycling paths and walking trails snakes through the surrounding fragrant pine forests, connecting the town center to the water and drawing slow-travel enthusiasts, campers, and hikers who wish to escape urban hustle.

Beyond its natural assets, Parentis-en-Born boasts a strong local identity, rich cultural heritage, and deep agricultural roots. Historically, the local economy thrived on fishing, forestry, and resin collection, followed by a unique period of industrial history when oil was discovered beneath the lake in the 1950s. Today, visitors can explore the town's traditional Gascon architecture, vibrant weekly markets, and a local arena that hosts traditional Course Landaise (bull-jumping spectacles), reflecting a proud regional identity that remains highly authentic.

For international travelers and property buyers, the nearest major airport is Bordeaux-Mérignac Airport (BOD), located approximately 61 kilometers (38 miles) to the north. The airport can be reached in about 45 to 50 minutes by car via the A63 motorway, providing direct flights to numerous European cities and international hubs.
