Descripción:
Sobral da Abelheira | 4,250 m² of Nature, History and Potential

There are lands that are bought for reason. And there are others that choose us with the heart.

This is one of those places.

Upon entering the property, one immediately feels the tranquility of an old orchard, where time seems to have followed a different rhythm. The apple and pear trees continue to bear fruit, cultivated organically for several years, preserving the authenticity of the land and offering the possibility of future organic certification.

At the center of this setting stands a small legalized agricultural building, existing since 1944. At just 18 m², it is far more than a structure: it is the living memory of generations who cared for this land, harvested its fruits and respected nature.

It is easy to imagine spring mornings among flowering trees, the aroma of apples and pears in late summer and days spent cultivating a vegetable garden, far from city noise. A place where the goal is not merely to own land, but to create a refuge, produce food, breathe and live with greater calm.

And perhaps the greatest potential of this space lies precisely in its history. The existence of this building predating 1951 opens a very interesting opportunity for those who understand the legislation and wish to explore the potential of a future Ruin Declaration, significantly enhancing the property value.
