About the Area

Bathurst is about 12 kilometres inland from Port Alfred, on the R67 road, in the Eastern Cape province of South Africa, and is named after Henry Bathurst, 3rd Earl Bathurst, Secretary of State for the Colonies by Sir Rufane Donkin.

Bathurst has become a village of retired academics, artists, eccentrics and pineapple farmers. You will not fail to notice 'The Big Pineapple' on the outskirts of the town, a 16.7 metre, 3-storey high fibreglass pineapple. This monolithic faux fruit looms over a field of real pineapples, the principal crop in the area. Following the motto of 'today's machinery is tomorrow's history', the Bathurst Agricultural Museum was established in 1970 as a home for old farming implements.

What began as a 30-item display has now developed into a remarkable museum with more than 1 300 objects. Ox wagons, steam engines, old tractors, ostrich incubators and dairy utensils are but a few farming artefacts to be seen. Bathurst neighbours the Waters Meeting Nature Reserve, home to many species of animals, birds and plants. The reserve offers hiking trails, picnic spots and remarkable views of the river and valley.

Whether you're in the mood for an informal seaside escape, an encounter with the 'Big Five' on safari, or a choice of scintillating city diversions, you're sure to find what you're looking for in the Eastern Cape. Scenic diversity is one of the most striking characteristics of the region, ranging from the lush, evergreen Tsitsikamma Forest to the rugged Baviaanskloof Wilderness Area, the southern slopes of the Drakensberg and the arid Great Karoo.

Alternating between sweeping sand, river mouths, rocks and covers, the coastline is a paradise for water sports enthusiasts. Among them, surfers ride the perfect waves, anglers reel in king-size catches, and board sailors revel in the challenge of the wind. Sunshine all year round, fine leisure resorts and splendid facilities ensure that the great outdoors is always in style.

When pleasures of a more sophisticated kind appeal, you'll find plenty to entertain you in Port Elizabeth and East London. Both are ideal for family holidays, large enough to offer all the amenities of a city, yet small enough to be genuinely welcoming and friendly. They also provide convenient access to unspoiled areas of exceptional natural beauty.
