About the Area

Anglisides is a village in the Larnaka province, which is just south of the village, about 17 km. Anglisides is located on the west side of Larnaka, between the city of Larnaka and Kofinou, but also on the south side of Stavrovouni. The Anglisides community has seen an upward population growth almost all the years since the village was established. More specifically, according to the censuses made on the island, it is reported that in 1960 the village had 564 inhabitants, in 1973 they were reduced to 498 to grow a little later, in 1976 to 633, in 1982 to 728 and in 2001 to 997. Anglisides numbers approximately 1400 inhabitants.

Taking a walk in the village you will see several impressive churches scattered like the church of Agia Marina and Agios Therapontos built in the centre of the village. It should be noted that there are two smaller churches dedicated to these Saints, but population growth has forced the community to build larger churches to serve the needs of the faithful. So in 1996 the church was completed and started to function normally but it was fully completed in 2002. Also in Anglisides there is the church of Agios Georgios which is located in the village's Cemetery and the church of St. Arsenios of Kappadoki and St. Ephraim.

It is worth mentioning that the 'Olive Museum' operates in the village, where the long tradition of olive cultivation and oil production and the technological development of olive oil production, which is inextricably linked with the Cypriot and Mediterranean identity in general. A special place among the beauties of the village is the ancient olive tree, which for 700 years stands as a vigilant guard on the land of Anglisides.

Larnaca District is located in Cyprus. It is one of the six districts of the country. The capital of the district is city of the same name. The district is home to the Larnaca International Airport. It is the major airport of the island. The district also boasts of having numbers of historical tourist spots and beautiful sea. Presence of countless tourist attractions has made it a favorite and most popular tourist spot worldwide. The harbour that is shaded by the palm-trees in the district is also a major feature. The district is supposed to have derived its name from the presence of large numbers of tombs therein.
