ABOUT THE AREA

The smallest town on the entire island of Elba, in Procchio there are enchanting villas, practically invisible to prying eyes, immersed in the green of the gentle hills or overlooking the coast. This village represents one of the most suggestive panoramas of the island. Since the seventeenth century, the municipality of Marciana has been a renowned place for producing frank and sincere wine, exported mainly to the ports of Liguria and Tuscany.

Elba is a Mediterranean island in Tuscany, Italy, 10 km from the coastal town of Piombino on the Italian mainland.

Elba is the biggest island of the Tuscan Archipelago National Park and the third largest island in Italy after Sardinia and Sicily. Together with eight other islands, including Giglio, Pianosa and Montecristo, it is part of the largest marine park in Europe.

There are several memories of its glorious past as we visit the island, from the archaeological findings in its museums to the impressive fortresses and military constructions such as Castello del Volterraio and then on to the beautiful Napoleonic residences of the 1800s such as Palazzina dei Mulini.

What really makes Elba marvelous and renowned are its clear and blue waters and beautiful beaches. The extraordinary richness of its landscapes, both land and marine, turns the island of Elba into a unique destination in Tuscany. We can say that is heaven on earth, with nothing to envy of more exotic Caribbean destinations.

In addition, Elba is the perfect place for outdoor sports and activities. Among the most appreciated sports, there is diving and snorkeling, thanks to its rich seabeds housing lots of different species of fish. But outdoors lovers can also enjoy spending time on land hiking and mountain biking, enjoying a round of golf, a day of sailing or enjoying days of complete relaxation at the thermal baths of San Giovanni. Here's another excellent resource on Elba island and what you can see and do on the island of Elba!"
