Spacious, beautifully finished, and completely move-in ready — this is a home that has been lived in and cared for with real attention to detail.

The Home:

From the moment you enter, the quality of the reformation is evident. Three generous living, dining, and socialising spaces flow through the ground floor, anchored by a charming wood burner beside the dining table — perfect for cosy Andalusian winters.

Olvera:

Olvera is one of Spain's most beautiful villages — a dramatic white hilltop town crowned by a Moorish castle and Gothic church, looking out over a vast landscape of olive groves and sierra. It sits at the northern gateway of the famous Ruta de los Pueblos Blancos.

Life here moves at a different pace. The village has a strong, welcoming community, excellent local restaurants, and a calendar of fiestas that bring it vibrantly to life throughout the year.

It is increasingly discovered by Northern European buyers drawn to its authenticity, its beauty, and its remarkable affordability compared to coastal Andalusia — while remaining well connected to three international airports.
