WHY TO CHOOSE AVEIRO?

Aveiro is a very welcoming and even romantic city, with a very small urban center whose municipality was founded in 1515 (and of which there are references since the 10th century). It is the capital of the district, and includes 10 parishes that include around 55 thousand citizens who are very spread out over the territory, largely because it is a very flat area.

The city is only 10 km from the coastal strip, where the beaches of Barra, Costa Nova and São Jacinto are the delight of bathers and sportsmen. Separating the city from the ocean, is the Ria de Aveiro, a lagoon about 32 km long, associated with the sea and the mouth of several rivers, which make it a unique habitat, always connected to people and the local economy.

Aveiro is closely linked to Fisheries, and has an important Commercial and Naval Port, but it is also a city that involves important industrial and technological centers, which work closely with its fantastic University, an international reference for its research work.

It is, therefore, a very calm region with a very mild climate, an excellent bet for living, and raising your family.

If you want to vary, its centrality is masterful, with the city of Porto (2nd largest in the country) and the Sá Carneiro airport less than an hour's drive away, as well as the city of Coimbra and Viseu!

For about 2 hours, you will find, for example, the city of Lisbon and the highest point in mainland Portugal with 1993m of altitude, in Estrela Mountain.
