ABOUT THE AREA

Komárom, located in northern Hungary on the south bank of the Danube River, is a city with a rich and complex history. Its strategic location at a major river crossing has made it a significant cultural, military, and commercial hub for centuries. The city's geography is defined by the Danube, which also marks the border with Slovakia, creating a unique cross-border community with its counterpart, Komárno, on the northern bank. The two cities, once a single entity, were divided by the Treaty of Trianon in 1920, but a sense of shared heritage remains, with several bridges connecting them.

Historically, Komárom was one of the most important fortresses in the Austro-Hungarian Monarchy. Its expansive fortress system, a proposed UNESCO World Heritage Site, played a crucial role in defending the region from various invasions, particularly during the Turkish occupation and the Hungarian Revolution of 1848. Today, these historic forts, including Fort Monostor and Fort Csillag, are major tourist attractions, housing museums and cultural events. The city also has a long history dating back to Roman times, with the ancient Roman city of Brigetio having been located in what is now the Szőny district of Komárom.

Beyond its historical significance, Komárom is a city that is rapidly developing, with a strong focus on commerce and industry. Its location near major transport routes, including a railway line and the M1 motorway, has attracted numerous multinational companies and created new jobs. The city's economy is diverse, with key sectors including trade, transport, and manufacturing. It is also well-known for its thermal baths, which draw visitors seeking relaxation and wellness. The blend of a rich historical past and a vibrant, modern present makes Komárom an attractive place to live and invest.

For international visitors, Komárom is conveniently located near several airports. The nearest is Győr-Pér International Airport (QGY), which is approximately 26.4 km away. For a wider range of international flights, Budapest Liszt Ferenc International Airport (BUD) is the largest and most common choice, situated about 92.3 km from Komárom. Another viable option is M. R. Štefánik Airport (BTS) in Bratislava, Slovakia, which is about 82.7 km away. These airports ensure that the city is well-connected to the rest of Europe and beyond, making it easily accessible for business or leisure.
