Leírás:

Set in the most beautiful and historic part of Olvera , this home has been loved and enjoyed for many years and now the owner wishes to let someone else do the same and move on to his next adventure here in Olvera.

On a peaceful street tucked right behind the Neo classical church and within the original walls of the old town is sweet home .

Entering you have a dining come sitting room , off which is compact kitchen with good cabinetry , granite worktops , appliances and an understaffs storage space . to the rear of the dining room is a very characterful cave room with original beams and arched feature , this space has been used as guest bedroom and just a chill out area as the temperature due to it being a cave is pretty much constant year round .

Up stairs you have a fully tiled bathroom with full length bath, a sink and loo , a lovely sitting room , a with balcony overlooking the views, a small woodturner to provide warmth in winter and aircon for cooling in the summer , which was fitted just this year, then there is the bedroom which has access to a short run of steps up to the access to a large patio which has been internalised with a huge glass atrium , this is a large bright room with charming wall tiles a very useable space indeed and it allows light into the bedroom too.

Up on the top level there ia single bedroom and of course the roof terrace which offers great views to the mountains of Grazalema and the stunning sunsets .

The house was fully renovated structurally in approximately 2010 , all installation were replaced at this time along with new roof and tiles as well as all windows and doors , the current owner added the atrium , wood burner and zircon .

A fantastic cozy home ready to enjoy in the heart of the history of Olvera.
