ABOUT THE AREA

Strathroy-Caradoc is a municipality located in Southwestern Ontario, Canada. It is 35 kilometres west of London. Strathroy-Caradoc is a primarily rural municipality. Industries include turkey and chicken hatching and processing, corn, tobacco, automotive, and pharmaceutical. Ontario is a province in east-central Canada that borders the U.S. and the Great Lakes. It's home to Ottawa, Canada's capital, known for Parliament Hill's Victorian architecture and the National Gallery, featuring Canadian and indigenous art. Toronto, Ontario's capital, is home to the 553m-high CN Tower, with expansive views from its revolving restaurant, as well as High Park, site of a rare oak savannah habitat.

Canada's most popular destination for newcomers, Ontario is the country's most populous province, home more than 13,650,000 people. It is also the second-largest province in the country by land area. The province is located in central Canada.

Ontario's capital city is Toronto, whose 6 million people make it Canada's largest and most populous city. Toronto is also the country's financial centre and the seat of the stock exchange. About half of the people living in Toronto were born in other countries, and the city is said to be the most multicultural city in the world. Also located in Ontario is Ottawa, the capital city of Canada, which is located in southeastern Ontario. Other important Ontario cities include London, Thunder Bay, Hamilton, Kingston, Windsor and Sudbury.

Besides being Canada's main economic hub, Ontario is also known for its natural diversity, including vast forests, beautiful provincial parks, four of the five Great Lakes and the world-famous Niagara falls. Complementing this natural diversity is a cultural diversity that is the product of high levels of immigration combined with a society that embraces multiculturalism and tolerance. Ontario's cities attract artists, entertainers and intellectuals from around the world. Ontario also produces a wealth of homegrown talent. With its very high foreign-born population, Toronto provides a taste of the world within in a city.
