Unique Eco Retreat in the Foothills of Foia, Monchique

A truly unique rural retreat set in the beautiful foothills of Foia, close to Monchique in the Western Algarve. Once a traditional pumpkin farm, the property extends across approximately 3 hectares of private land, with a river running through the estate, natural springs and wonderful views towards Foia mountain.

With a peaceful mountain setting, the property is exceptionally well connected. A new tarmac road, completed in summer 2025, provides a direct route to the spectacular West Coast, now reachable in approximately 20 minutes, offering easy access to its beaches, surf and coastal villages.

The main house has been sensitively renovated in a distinctive Moroccan-inspired style and offers four bedrooms arranged over two floors, each with its own en-suite bathroom. Alongside the main house is a beautifully converted former medronho distillery, now providing a completely self-contained one-bedroom guest house with a characterful chestnut-wood mezzanine.

The property has been finished to a high standard throughout, combining traditional materials with individually crafted details. There are six bathrooms featuring striking floor-to-ceiling Moroccan tiling, together with handmade wooden beds, bespoke furniture and numerous original features.

Outside, the setting is particularly special. Three natural springs and a traditional water mine provide an abundance of water, while a natural swimming pool planted with aquatic plants blends beautifully into the surrounding landscape. Extensive terraces provide space for outdoor dining and entertaining, with a dedicated BBQ area, yoga deck and tipi creating a wonderful environment for relaxation, retreats and outdoor living.

Hot water is provided by an efficient evacuated-tube solar system, complemented by a wood-burning stove with back boiler.

The land extends for approximately 3 hectares up the mountainside, offering spectacular views towards Foia and several attractive level areas throughout the property.

A rare opportunity to acquire an established character property in one of the Algarve's most beautiful mountain settings — combining privacy and nature with surprisingly easy access to the West Coast.
