Created in 1916, the Parish of Quarteira is now well known to the Portuguese for its magnificent beach, the best quality fish and its stone pine forests. To this is added the fishing aspect, a very important potential not only for the wealth it produces, but also for the typicity it contains, constituting therefore one of the attractions for tourists. In this parish is the largest private tourist development in Europe, which is Vilamoura.

It is made up of different types of tourist offer, from high-quality hotels, casinos, restaurants, bars, nightclubs, golf courses and beaches. Within this development, with unique characteristics in the world, another of the valences that the parish of Quarteira offers to its visitors is the Vilamoura Marina, one of the ex-libris of the Algarve region, of unquestionable importance for the Algarve and for the country. Golf, in the sports-tourism aspect, represents, for this parish, for the Municipality of Loulé and for the entire Algarve region, an extraordinary economic contribution and, most especially, a strong contribution to the reduction of seasonality during the so-called low season.

In Vilamoura alone there are five golf courses, all of high quality, with a landscape setting and with the effective preference of the great specialists of the sport. The potential of the parish of Quarteira attracts tourists from all over the world and in addition to about two dozen hotels and residences, it also has several groups of apartments and a campsite to house all its visitors.

Tourist sites of historical and cultural interest are the ruins of Vilamoura (Cerro da Vila), Loulé Velho and Fonte Santa. The people believe, linked to a very ancient popular tradition that in recent times has been lost, that this Fountain is born from healing waters. In Quarteira there are several socio-cultural events, such as the Popular Marches during the month of June. Quarteira is, in fact, one of the most important parishes in the Municipality of Loulé. - REF: JP067 QT
