ABOUT THE AREA

Augsburg, Bavaria is one of Germany's oldest cities. The varied architecture in its center includes medieval guild houses, the 11th-century St. Mary's Cathedral and the onion-domed Sankt Ulrich und Afra abbey. Key Renaissance buildings are the Augsburger Town Hall with its Golden Hall. The Fuggereihäuser is the seat of a wealthy banking dynasty and the Fuggerei is a 16th-century social housing complex.

Augsburg has always been a little more glamorous than other cities. Its magnificent fountains, grand old guild houses, exquisite churches and the Town Hall combine to form a cityscape of rare intensity. More recent periods have also left their mark here, most notably the Baroque and Rococo eras and the Art Nouveau movement, all of which transform a stroll through the city into a very special experience. As far back as the High Middle Ages, travellers were astounded by the cathedral with its stunning bronze doors (now nearly 1,000 years old) and the Basilica of St. Ulrich and St. Afra. Another marvel was the wealth of the Fugger family, who rose to become a global powerhouse of capitalism in the space of just three generations.

The Mozarts join the Fuggers as another family with close ties to the city. Leopold Mozart, father to Wolfgang Amadeus and an influential composer in his own right, was born here. The Mozart Festival, which is held every May, is just one way the father-and-son composers are commemorated in the city. Did you know that Augsburg was once surrounded by a continuous city wall? Numerous gold and silversmiths settled within it. Their works can be viewed in museums and purchased from independent businesses. But technology enthusiasts also get their money's worth in the university city. Numerous water towers, hydroelectric power plants, magnificent fountains and watercourses are witnesses to a globally unique water management system that has evolved over centuries and was finally designated a UNESCO World Heritage Site in 2019. After exploring and shopping, what better way to draw the day to a close than with a drink in one of the many lovely bars in the Old Town.

A City Steeped in History:

- * Founded in 15 BC by the Romans, Augsburg is one of Germany's oldest cities. Its rich past is evident in its well-preserved Altstadt (old town), a UNESCO World Heritage Site.
- * Wander through the cobbled streets lined with colorful Renaissance and Baroque buildings, and marvel at the Rathausplatz (town hall square), dominated by the impressive Perlachturm clock tower.

Architectural Gems:

- * Augsburg boasts a wealth of architectural treasures, from the Roman ruins still visible in the city center to the magnificent Augsburg Cathedral, a masterpiece of Gothic architecture.
- * Explore the Fuggerei, the world's oldest social housing complex, built in 1516 by the wealthy Fugger family to provide affordable housing for the poor.
- * Admire the opulent mansions of the Fugger family, such as the Fuggerhaus and the Fuggerschloss, which showcase the city's prosperous past.

A Hub of Art and Culture:

- * Augsburg has a thriving arts scene, with numerous museums, theaters, and concert halls. Visit the Schaezlerpalais, home to a collection of European art from the Middle Ages to the 19th century, or catch a performance at the renowned Augsburg Theater.
- * The city also hosts several annual festivals, including the Mozartwoche, a classical music festival celebrating the composer's life and work, and the Brecht Festival, dedicated to the playwright Bertolt Brecht.

Beyond the City Center:

* Augsburg is surrounded by beautiful natural landscapes, perfect for exploring on foot or by bike. Hike or bike through the Augsburg Western Woods, a vast forest area with trails and lakes, or visit the Lech River, ideal for swimming, kayaking, and canoeing.

* Day trips to nearby cities like Munich and Nuremberg are also popular, offering a taste of Bavarian culture and history.

A Foodie Paradise:

* Augsburg boasts a diverse culinary scene, from traditional Bavarian restaurants serving hearty dishes like sausages and dumplings to international cuisines like Italian, Asian, and Greek.

* Don't miss the chance to try the local specialty, 'Leberkässemmel,' a meatloaf sandwich on a roll.

* Sample local beers at one of the city's many breweries, or enjoy a glass of wine from the nearby Franconian wine region.

Something for Everyone:

Whether you're interested in history, art, culture, nature, or simply delicious food, Augsburg has something to offer everyone. With its charming atmosphere, rich heritage, and stunning surroundings, this Bavarian gem is definitely worth exploring.
