São Marcos da Serra is a rural parish belonging to the municipality of Silves, in the Algarve, located in a transition zone between the Baixo Alentejo and the Algarve, and between the mountains of Monchique and Caldeirão. The parish is characterized by its narrow streets and white houses with colorful elements, typical of mountain villages in the Algarve.

Location and Setting:

It is located to the west of the IC1, 36 km north of Silves.

The Odelouca stream passes through the parish and feeds the Odelouca dam.

It is neighboring the parishes of São Bartolomeu de Messines, Alferce, Pereiras, Santana da Serra, São Barnabé and Sabóia.

It is located between the mountains of Monchique and Caldeirão, with the Alentejo to the north and the Algarve coast to the south.

Village Features:

It has an irregular house, with houses mostly with one floor, following the relief.

Backyards are agricultural spaces with a strong presence.

Largo da Igreja is a central point, with the Parish Council, Health Center and Church.

The daughter-in-law and the donkey, symbols of rural life, and the Mother Church, with Manueline and Baroque elements, stand out.
