Located in a strategic area, the development benefits from a privileged connection to Lisbon, located about 20 minutes away, and to the airport, approximately 15 minutes away. Access is facilitated by the Vasco da Gama Bridge, one of the main links between the two banks of the Tagus.

Montijo, part of the Lisbon Metropolitan Area and belonging to the district of Setúbal, is a city with a strong historical identity and connection to the Tagus estuary. Formerly known as the Galician Village of Ribatejo, it stood out for its fishing activity, salt pans and river transport, maintaining a close relationship with the capital to this day.
