Omschrijving:

Located in Birkirkara this very small old HOUSE OF CHARACTER locally known as a Karrejja is built around a traditional central passageway. Upon entrance a narrow corridor leads into the property and divides it into three distinct areas the first area at the front comprises two very small rooms positioned off the passageway which may be used as storage areas or redesigned into compact living spaces the second area features a spacious main room accessible from the passage suitable for use as a living area bedroom or open plan layout and the third area located on the opposite side of the passageway consists of a piece of land traditionally used for raising animals offering potential to be converted into a courtyard garden or extended living space. The property also includes its own airspace allowing for further development potential subject to planning regulations.
