ABOUT THE AREA

Belek, nestled on the Mediterranean coast of Turkey in the Antalya province, has evolved from a quiet coastal stretch into one of Europe's most prestigious and highly sought-after resort towns. Framed by the dramatic, pine-forested Taurus Mountains on one side and the sparkling turquoise waters of the Turkish Riviera on the other, this modern town is celebrated for its flawless blend of natural beauty, luxury infrastructure, and year-round sunshine. It is a destination meticulously planned to cater to upscale travelers, property investors, and lifestyle seekers alike.

The primary claim to fame for Belek is its status as the undisputed golfing capital of Turkey. The region boasts a dense concentration of world-class, championship golf courses designed by legendary figures of the sport, such as Sir Nick Faldo and Colin Montgomerie. These impeccably maintained greens are seamlessly integrated into the natural landscape of pine and eucalyptus forests, drawing international enthusiasts and professional tournaments throughout the winter and spring seasons, which ensures a remarkably steady, year-round influx of tourism.

Beyond the fairways, Belek is equally renowned for its stunning, wide coastline featuring several Blue Flag certified public and private beaches. Known for their golden sands, clean waters, and shallow entry points, these beaches offer an ideal environment for families and watersport enthusiasts. The town center itself complements this relaxed beach lifestyle with its vibrant, modern layout, boasting pedestrian-friendly shopping districts filled with local boutiques, traditional bazaars, international dining venues, and high-end thermal spa facilities.

Positioned perfectly for ease of travel, Belek is exceptionally accessible for both domestic and international visitors. The nearest airport is Antalya International Airport (AYT), which is located roughly 23 to 40 kilometers (approximately 14 to 25 miles) west of the resort town. Thanks to well-developed highway connections, the drive from this major aviation hub—which handles direct flights from major cities across Europe, Russia, and the Middle East—takes a smooth and convenient 25 to 30 minutes, effortlessly linking Belek to the rest of the world.
