About the Area

Pyrgos is a picturesque village situated roughly 13 to 18 kilometers east of Limassol's city center in Cyprus. Nestled between rolling coastal hills and the Mediterranean Sea, the village seamlessly blends authentic traditional charm with modern convenience. It is well-regarded for its peaceful residential atmosphere, fertile agricultural land—notably famous for producing tomatoes—and its welcoming local community.

The village carries a rich history that stretches back thousands of years. Archaeological excavations in the area have uncovered ancient copper production workshops dating back to 3000-2000 BC. In medieval times, the settlement gained its name from a local castle or tower ('pyrgos' in Greek). Today, visitors can still explore historical sites nearby, such as the ruins of an ancient Cistercian watermill and historic stone-built chapels like Panagia Neroforoussa.

In addition to its historic roots, Pyrgos offers immediate access to a vibrant coastal lifestyle. Just a short drive south lies the St. Raphael Marina and Aoratoi Beach, a clean, sandy stretch of coast framed by natural sea lilies. The lower coastal section of the Pyrgos area is home to several high-end five-star resorts, seaside dining, and watersports, making it a popular hub for both relaxed long-term living and summer tourism.

Travelling to and from Pyrgos is straightforward thanks to its proximity to the A6 highway. The nearest major commercial airport to Pyrgos is Larnaca International Airport (LCA), located approximately 55 kilometers (35 miles) to the east, which takes around 35 to 40 minutes by car. Additionally, Paphos International Airport (PFO) serves as a secondary option, situated roughly 70 to 75 kilometers to the west.
