ABOUT THE AREA

Marsa Alam stands as the premium attraction in the entire Red Sea area. Embracing a diversity of attractions and a wide assortment of flora and fauna of the Red Sea, the city is renowned for its eternally charming undersea tapestry of vivacious corals and effervescent marine life, and is home to sea turtles, dolphins and dugongs, a large marine mammal that instigated the legend of the mermaids. Marsa Alam is also regularly visited for therapeutic purposes. The chemical composition of the sand, sea and abundance of coral reefs help cure many forms of psoriasis, in addition to many skin, bone and respiratory diseases.

Marsa Alam and its vicinities are abounding with ancient monasteries, exquisite national parks and protectorates, in addition to its abundant desert and water activities. Nearby, Gabal Elba and Wadi Al Gemal are the most visited protectorates, offering a spectacular array of local and migratory birds and desert wildlife. Among its other attractions, Marsa Alam has become a recognized destination for kite surfing, wind surfing and safaris, offering a plethora of wildlife parks and desert and water activities. The beautiful mountains surrounding the city were once mined for gold and emeralds and special excursions can be planned to visit them.

There are 33 different diving sites in Marsa Alam, each offering a distinctive and extraordinary experience of the sea world. The most outstanding is Samadai Reef, commonly known as Dolphin House and named for the large school of spinner dolphins residing among the reefs of this breathtaking diving spot. Marsa Mubarak, also known as Turtle Bay, is one of the largest and most visited sites in the city as it offers a range of snorkeling and diving activities for professionals and amateurs alike. The bay is most famous for its charming green sea turtles, hawksbill turtles and dugongs.
