every summer.

Part of the house that we currently use as an office and spare bedroom (mezzanine) could also be used as an Airbnb as it has its own private entrance from the garden.

There is an attached workshop space, currently used as an atelier for our bike hire business. Opportunity to continue this if you want.

A large vaulted cellar and laundry, a wood shed, a large building with mezzanine currently used for storage and two enclosed gardens at the back and side complete the ensemble. There is an opportunity to purchase an extra piece of land, valued at around 5,000€.

Lovely quiet hamlet, situated directly on the river Tarn with access to walks and other activities for nature-lovers. 10 minutes from Ste Enimie.

Heating is electric with 2 wood burners, diagnostic is done. Good structural condition, some interior refreshment to do.

Excellent potential for a main home with a gîte income, or to take over our bike hire business or rent out the whole ensemble as an investment.

The owner have lived very, very happily here for 11 years but it's time to move on.

Price is negotiable – we are seeking a very quick sale.

All serious offers considered.

ABOUT THE AREA

Languedoc-Roussillon (often called 'the Languedoc') is a historical coastal region in southern France, extending from Provence to the Pyrenees Mountains and the border with Spain. It's now part of Occitanie. The area is a major wine producer, with Vin de Pays d'Oc and sparkling Crémant de Limoux among its best-known varieties. The regional capital, Montpellier, is home to a well-preserved medieval quarter.

Stretching from Provence to the Pyrenees, this sultry, sun-baked territory (now part of the greater Occitanie region) feels like a country in its own right. It's been a strategic border since Roman times and is awash with historical reminders, from Roman aqueducts to hilltop Cathar castles. Today it's best known for its vineyards, which produce a third of France's wines, and the busy beaches sprawling along its Mediterranean shore.

Each of Languedoc-Roussillon's three main areas has its own distinct landscape and character. Bas-Languedoc is home to the biggest beaches and the captivating cities of Montpellier and Nîmes. Inland lies the high, wild country of the Grands Causses and Cévennes, with a fascinating mix of hills, caves, gorges, forests and surreal moonscape plateaux. Roussillon, in the southwest, shares close ties with Catalonia just across the Spanish border, including traditional sardanes folk dances and a passion for rugby and vibrant summer festivals.
