The architects and designers possess a deep understanding of how a house should blend with its environment. The homes feature a low-profile design to seamlessly integrate with the landscape. Standing in your garden, you'll experience a distinctive mountain-like ambiance. The walls showcase a partial stone façade, exuding a warm, natural radiance that allows the structure to harmonize with its surroundings while providing an effective thermal barrier.

Even the flat roofs offer verdant views, regardless of the direction you gaze. To merge functionality and aesthetics, indigenous plants adorn the rooftops, creating an additional natural space. Apart from their visual and aromatic appeal, these plants act as natural repellents against pests such as wasps and mosquitoes, further enhancing your comfort.

The designers have paid meticulous attention to optimizing available space, following modern Northern European standards. The U-shaped building design ensures a practical distribution of square meters, maximizing privacy from neighbors. We employ the innovative SISMO building system, guaranteeing high energy efficiency, excellent acoustic and thermal insulation, maintaining optimal temperatures while keeping noise at bay. Furthermore, it eliminates issues commonly associated with traditional building methods, such as cracks and humidity.

Interior spaces have been thoughtfully crafted to facilitate logical and comfortable transitions, featuring spacious rooms with ample wardrobe space. Every detail, both indoors and outdoors, has been meticulously addressed to create a home that offers comfort, privacy, and efficiency.

The golf villas offer an additional 26m² room, bathed in natural light and spaciousness, allowing for versatile use as a gym, office, extra bedroom, or even a library.

Our vision is to provide more than just a new house or a new location; we aim to offer a home that fosters a positive and healthy way of life. To achieve this, we have created villas with thoughtful design and meticulous construction. Guided by the timeless principles of Feng Shui, our homes are nestled within expansive natural areas and a private community that encompasses large communal green spaces, yoga and meditation areas, and an array of sporting activities to suit your active lifestyle.
