ABOUT THE AREA

The apartment is in Piovene Rocchette, a small town of 8,000 inhabitants in the province of Vicenza in Veneto, which is strategically located and has been a place of religious pilgrimage since the 15th century. The Asiago plateau and its seven municipalities embraces the town and is well known for its exceptional tourist offer both in the winter and in the summer: here the mountains frame naturalistic landscapes of rare beauty, ski resorts abound and there are plenty of options for summer excursions. The tourist reception is excellent, the gastronomic specialties (cheeses, in particular) also make it a destination for gourmands. Tourist locations such as the Asiago plateau are easily reachable by bus while cities of art such as Vicenza, Verona and Venice and natural beauties such as Lake Garda are easily accessible by car or train

The Province of Vicenza is a province in the Veneto region in northern Italy. Its capital city is Vicenza. The province has an area of 2,722.53 km², and a total population of 865,082.

Unlike other provinces in the region of Veneto it is fairly mountainous with several peaks over two thousand metres above sea level, the most notable being Mount Grappa and Mount Novegno. The Brenta Canal also runs right through the province of Vicenza. Population is unevenly spread throughout the province. More than 60% of the populace resides in densely industrialised areas in the eastern, western, and northern (known as Alto Vicentino) industrial zones, as well as the area surrounding Bassano del Grappa. The remaining 40% reside in predominantly rural areas in the southern part of the province (the Colli Berici and Basso Vicentino) or the Asiago plateau.

WHAT TO DO IN THE VICENZA PROVINCE

Bicycle touring, mountain biking, hiking, rock climbing, and ski and snowboarding are the main outdoor recreation activities, but you could also cross country ski, para sail, cave, and kayak. Combine these activities with visiting Palladio villa's, walled cities, wine producers, and industrial complex's and you have a great vacation destination.
