Nestled on the captivating island of Evia, the second-largest Greek island, and boasting a privileged location near the charming coastal town of Karystos, awaits an extraordinary opportunity to acquire a substantial and breathtaking plot of land. This exceptional parcel, encompassing a generous 5453 square meters (approximately 58,700 square feet or 1.35 acres), presents a unique canvas upon which to create your dream Mediterranean retreat or a strategic investment in a region of unparalleled natural beauty and historical significance.

What distinguishes this land is its remarkable topography, offering the coveted and highly desirable amenity of dual panoramic views – the shimmering expanse of the Aegean Sea stretching towards the horizon on one side, and the majestic, rugged peaks of the surrounding mountains rising dramatically on the other. This breathtaking vista provides a constant source of inspiration and tranquility, promising a lifestyle immersed in the stunning natural beauty that Greece is renowned for.

Adding to the inherent charm and potential of this property are its established natural features. The land is graced with approximately 150 mature olive trees, a quintessential element of the Greek landscape. These ancient trees not only contribute to the visual appeal of the plot, providing dappled shade and a sense of timelessness, but also offer the potential for producing your own high-quality olive oil, a taste of the authentic Mediterranean lifestyle.

Practicality and ease of development are paramount with this exceptional land offering. It benefits from direct road access, ensuring convenient entry and facilitating the transportation of materials and personnel should you choose to build. Furthermore, essential utilities are readily available, with electricity and water connections already in place or easily accessible, significantly streamlining the initial stages of any construction project and saving valuable time and resources.

About the Area

Karystos is a charming coastal town situated on the southern tip of the island of Evia, Greece's second-largest island. Nestled between the Aegean Sea and the imposing Mount Oxi, Karystos boasts a picturesque harbor, lined with traditional tavernas and bustling with local life. The town's history stretches back to ancient times, and remnants of its past, including Venetian fortifications and neoclassical architecture, add to its unique character. Karystos serves as a gateway to the stunning natural beauty of southern Evia, offering access to beautiful beaches, hiking trails on Mount Oxi, and a more tranquil and authentic Greek island experience compared to some of the more crowded destinations.

The town itself offers a relaxed and welcoming atmosphere. Visitors can enjoy leisurely strolls along the waterfront, savor fresh seafood at local restaurants, and explore the charming streets filled with small shops and cafes. Karystos is also known for its archaeological museum, which houses artifacts from the region's rich history. The surrounding area is ideal for outdoor enthusiasts, with opportunities for swimming, sunbathing, windsurfing, and exploring the diverse landscapes of southern Evia, from its rugged mountains to its secluded coves. The local community is friendly and retains a strong sense of traditional Greek culture.

For those traveling to Karystos by air, the most convenient major international airport is Athens International Airport 'Eleftherios Venizelos' (ATH), located on the mainland. From the airport, travelers have a couple of primary options to reach Karystos. The most common route involves taking a bus or taxi from the airport to the port of Rafina, which is approximately a 30-minute drive away. From Rafina, there are regular ferry services to the port of Marmari in southern Evia, a journey that typically takes around one hour. Once in Marmari, Karystos is a short 15-20 minute drive by taxi or local bus.

Alternatively, it is possible to drive from Athens Airport to the southern part of Evia via the mainland, crossing the Evripos Strait at Chalkida and then driving south. However, this route is significantly longer, taking around 2.5 to 3 hours depending on traffic. While Evia does have a small airport on the island itself, Skyros Airport (SKU), it primarily serves domestic flights and is located further north, making Athens International Airport the primary point of entry for most international travelers heading to Karystos.
