A Rich Heritage

Quinta Glycinia, originally known as Quinta Gil, dates back to the late 19th century and was once part of the historic Quinta Santa Luzia property. Its name comes from the magnificent wisteria archway in the garden, celebrated in the 1909 book The Flowers and Gardens of Madeira. The property retains unique features such as a traditional Madeiran water bowl and troughs once fed by the Levada de Santa Luzia, now running beneath the home.
