One of the distinguishing features of this townhouse is the lower ground floor, where a second living room offers versatility and privacy. With good natural light and views over the village of Vila do Bispo, this space can easily be adapted to different needs, whether as a home office, reading area or even an additional bedroom, an increasingly valued feature for those seeking flexibility in how they use their home.

On the upper floor, the main bedroom with built-in wardrobes stands out for its private terrace, perfect for enjoying the Algarves mild climate throughout the year. This floor is served by a modern bathroom with contemporary and practical finishes. In addition to the main bedroom, there is a further space that can be used as a bedroom or office, offering magnificent views over the centre of the village.

The property also benefits from solar panels for water heating, an efficient solution that helps reduce energy costs and promotes greater sustainability, an increasingly important factor in the Algarve property market.
