ABOUT THE AREA

Volos is a coastal port city in Thessaly situated midway on the Greek mainland, about 330 kilometres north of Athens and 220 kilometres south of Thessaloniki. It is the capital of the Magnesia regional unit of the Thessaly Region.

Volos is one of the largest and most beautiful Greek cities, located at the centre of the country, with a port that is among the busiest in Greece. Built at the innermost point of the Pagasetic Gulf, it lies at the foot of Mt. Pelion, where the fresh and salty sea breeze is mixed with the scented mountain air of the homeland of the mythical Centaurs. The city was the starting point of the ancient famed expedition of Jason and the Argonauts, which is one of the best-known chapters of Greek Mythology.

The region's wealth and its long history can be seen in its architectural structure which has an air of elegance and beauty. The grand residences and state buildings, the museums, the early 20th century industrial facilities, and the historic churches are some of the city highlights.

The long seafront is lined with traditional cafés and restaurants and among them you will find the local eateries called tsipouradika, where you will try the traditional tsipouro (a local strong spirit) and a variety of tasty seafood and fish dishes. The pedestrianised seaside Argonauts Way and the passenger port terminal, located on its west end, offer amazing views to the open sea and they are the most popular rendezvous spots for both locals and visitors.

The sights in Volos are so many that visiting them all will prove to be quite a challenging target. If walking is not your thing, there are alternatives: the bicycle lovers among you will be happy to know that there is a 10km long network of bicycle lanes so you can enjoy moving around the city, using a noiseless and ecological means of transport. The old industrial buildings will catch your eye; they are unmistakable evidence of the economic growth Volos has experienced during the first half of the 20th century. Nea Ionia is a large district formed by refugees of Greek origin who fled Turkey after the end of the Greek – Turkish war in 1922, and it's an area which has helped shape the city character to a considerable degree. The elegant buildings in the city centre, in the harbour area, and the railway station, and the working-class neighbourhoods in the environs have formed a charming city to live in and visit.
