Location: Giudecca, Venice

The Giudecca island is one of the best-known residential areas of Venice. With its characteristic houses, and the famous church of the Redeemer, it exudes a charm that has always remained intact over time. Just a short gondola ride from San Marco, it was referred to as Venice's "garden of delights" in the 18th century.

The name "Junghans" comes from the famous German company that founded the first Italian watch manufacturer here. In the 21st century, a profound restoration has changed its destination: now in the factory buildings we can find a theater and several residential complexes that preserve the historical name of Junghans.
