This versatile area offers excellent flexibility for storage, hobbies or additional usable space, subject to the relevant permissions and regulations.

As is common with this property type, the Title Deed lists the underbuild as storage space, though it has been adapted for additional accommodation. Should the new owners wish to formalise this change of use, it must be registered with the Land Registry. An architect will need to assess the space for compliance with living standards—such as height and ventilation—and issue the relevant certificate. A certificate from the Community of Property Owners will also be required.
