Just 1 km from the sea with road access from the Camino de la Torre Nueva, it is currently used as arable land and has a flat topography and rectangular geometry. Located in the middle of the hamlet of El Palmar, 9 km south of the municipality of Vejer de la Frontera and 4 km from the urban centre of Conil de la Frontera. It is a rural area dedicated to agriculture and livestock that has developed in the last two decades as a privileged area for tourists due to its wide beaches, its gastronomic and hospitality that it offers. It is also a must-see destination for surf lovers. It has shops selling crafts and clothing, a wide and varied range of pubs and terraces for adults and recreational areas for children. The Vejer de la Frontera Town Hall is drafting the Urban Action Plans for its orderly development.
