The department of Val d'Oise belongs to the Paris - Ile de France region and it is bordered with 6 other departments: Seine et Marne to the east , Oise to the north, Hauts de Seine, Yvelines in the south, Seine Saint Denis and Eure.

Although the smallest department of the region, Val d'Oise has much on offer. The rural areas present a typical aspect; cereal growing, unspoilt countryside and charming villages, whereas the centre and south west of the department are urbanized and are fully part of the Paris' suburban scene.

Fishing, horse riding, swimming, playing golf or skating are just some activities that you can practise in Val d'Oise. Cruises on the Oise River are also organized for the more romantic amongst us!

Museums, religious monuments, stunning countryside and history the department is full of great things to see and do.
