About the Area

The Peloponnese, Peloponnesus, or Morea is a peninsula and geographic region in southern Greece. It is connected to the central part of the country by the Isthmus of Corinth land bridge which separates the Gulf of Corinth from the Saronic Gulf.

Peloponnese is the most popular region of the Greek mainland in terms of tourism. The close distance to Athens, the beautiful resorts and the interesting sightseeing attract many visitors to Peloponnese Greece all year round. Historically, it has been the main field of action for Greece since the prehistoric times. In fact, it hosts the most important archaeological sites of Greece, including Olympia, Epidaurus, and Mycenae. Surrounded by sea from all sides, the region provides amazing beaches. The most famous areas include Nafplion, Gythio, Monemvasia, and Pylos.

Lampes beach is one of many very nice beaches in the south-western Peloponnese. Lampes beach is one of the least exploited beaches in the southwestern Peloponnese. There are no hotels here, but there are a couple of tavernas, a canteen, and there are sun beds and umbrellas for rent, but only at the beginning and at the end of the beach. On the middle part of the beach there is nothing but golden sand and wonderful waters.
