ABOUT THE AREA

Savigny-en-Revermont is a charming rural commune located in the Saône-et-Loire department in the Bourgogne-Franche-Comté region of eastern France. Positioned near the border of the Jura and Saône-et-Loire departments, the village is characterized by its tranquil, verdant landscape and scattered habitat, typical of the Bresse bourguignonne region. As of recent records, the commune is home to approximately 1,150 residents and covers an area of roughly 27 square kilometers.

The area is steeped in local heritage, featuring historic sites such as the 19th-century Saint-Vivant church, various traditional water mills, and the feudal mound (motte féodale) of the Bas de Savigny. The geography is defined by the gentle curves of the landscape and the presence of the Vallière river, which enhances the area's natural beauty and makes it a pleasant destination for those looking to explore the quiet countryside.

Local life in Savigny-en-Revermont remains connected to its traditional roots, with a local economy that includes polyculture, cattle farming, and dairy production, particularly cheese. The community is also part of the wider attraction area of Lons-le-Saunier, a larger town nearby that serves as a regional hub for services and culture. Residents and visitors alike benefit from the peaceful atmosphere and access to the regional 'Voie Verte de la Bresse,' a popular 60-kilometer cycling path that encourages outdoor exploration.

For those planning to travel to the region by air, the nearest major international facility is Lyon-Saint Exupéry Airport (LYS). While Savigny-en-Revermont is a rural destination without its own commercial airfield, the Lyon airport serves as a primary gateway for the region, offering extensive connections to domestic and international destinations. Travelers typically complete the journey to the village by renting a car or utilizing regional rail services to reach nearby towns such as Lons-le-Saunier or Louhans.
